Press release

Paris, February 1, 2018

In 2018, Transports Publics,
the European Mobility Exhibition, is going green!

Transports Publics, the European Mobility Exhibition is Europe's keynote event for the entire sector in 2018, to be held from 12 to 14 in Paris. With the "Move Green!" tagline, this year's edition will be placing a special emphasis on the major challenges of energy transition.

All the players in sustainable mobility will be there to demonstrate their ecological and technological exploits in everything from new energy sources to emissions control solutions via low-emission vehicles, active mobility, and more. 250 exhibitors will be showcasing their latest innovations and previewing their new releases: exhibits will include vehicles using clean energy such as electricity and biogas, smart batteries, energy recovery systems, solar-powered terminals, current sensors, and fleet management solutions. A dedicated track will highlight all the "Move Green!" innovations on show at the event.

"I'm keen for all sustainable mobility stakeholders, from multinationals to start-ups, to have the opportunity to show off their creativity and find out what's new"

Frédéric Baverez, Chairman, GIE Objectif transport public

Transports Publics 21, the European Mobility Exhibition, is an opportunity to discover the industrial and technical applications arising from institutional commitments in France and elsewhere in favour of ecological transition, in line with the COP21, COP23, and One Planet summits. Together with the politicians and companies committed to sustainable, innovative mobility, the 2018 edition of the Exhibition is focusing on being green – the smart way.
